Dear International Relations Department

I hope this email finds you well. I wanted to check again with you regarding the request I made for an article in the online publication, Open Access Government July 2020 (see below). I realise that now is a very difficult time to be asking this.

I do hope that this would be something that the Thailand Department of Agriculture would be happy to do. Please let me know what you think, I would love to hear your thoughts. I can extend the deadline for the final draft of the article to Thursday 4th June if that helps?

- You can find some examples of our prestige contributors here.
- You can also read the many positive comments from contributors to the journal here.
- You may like to look at our comprehensive April 2020 edition.

We are unable to pay for editorial contributions – and on the other hand – we do not charge for editorial contributions. There are no costs involved.

Kind regards

Dear International Relations Department

I trust this email finds you, your colleagues, family, and friends well in the very challenging times we live in. Director, Office of Agricultural Regulation just passed me your number.

I am looking for Thailand Department of Agriculture to write a piece for the July 2020 online edition of the Open Access Government publication. The article should outline your priorities when it comes to conducting research and development studies on various agricultural disciplines concerning crops and farm mechanisation. How does this aspect of your mandate work in harmony with international standards and adherence to the principles of natural resources conservation and environment protection? As an example of the 15 pioneering units of the Department of Agriculture, tell us about the work of the Rice Division and their priorities for the future. But we are very open to your ideas if they create a poignant read.

For our July 2020 digital edition, the article should be around 600 – 800 words (950 words maximum) and the copy deadline for copy (the final draft) is 28th May 2020 (this deadline is flexible). You may like to look at our comprehensive April 2020 edition.

Previous articles in the publication have come from prestigious contributors such as the following which are hyperlinked below should you want to view past examples of articles.

Confirmed contributors for our July 2020 edition include:

- ITU, the United Nations' ICT agency
- Lea Wermelin, Danish Minister for the Environment, Ministry of Environment and Food
- Taku Eto, Japanese Minister for Agriculture Ministry of Agriculture, Forestry and Fisheries
- Mary Stephen, Public Health Expert, World Health Organization
- Carol Bessel, Acting Division Director & Melissa Olson, Associate Program Director, National Science Foundation (NSF), U.S.
- Kadri Simson, European Commissioner for Energy, European Commission
- Maroš Šefčovič, Vice-President for Interinstitutional Relations and Foresight, European Commission

Open Access Government is digitally distributed to over 100,000 people throughout Europe, North America, Canada and Japan, and our articles also appear on Google News after we individually publish them on our website.

Please let me know what you think, I would love to hear your thoughts!

We are unable to pay for editorial contributions – and on the other hand – we do not charge for editorial contributions. There are no costs involved.

Kind regards
